

The Quest Challenge

This is an exciting day out in the open air, with the focus on team bonding much more than strategic team building. The team challenge is about having fun, being creative and using combined team resources to solve clues, work out co-ordinates and find information. It is exciting, deliberately competitive and can be carried out anywhere given sufficient preparation time.

On arrival at a designated meeting point, delegates will be issued with QSP's (Quest Survival Packs), which will contain an assortment of equipment such as maps, flags, cameras, polaroid films, emergency envelopes, scissors, pens, first aid kit, freezer bags.....and much more besides!!

From here, a series of clues, tasks and riddles will take the teams on a rambling trail across the countryside.

Normally the Challenge takes place in cars. However, should budget, allow there is the option of incorporating different forms of transport within the challenge. These can range from punting to horse riding and of course the old-fashioned bicycle!

Teams will have to complete many various tasks, solve a variety of clues, puzzles and riddles. The quest ends up at a pre-determined location (hotel/pub/restaurant) where the sheet and 'evidence' is handed in and the points are tallied.

The participants enjoy a drink, swap war stories and reflect on the day's antics while the score sheets are marked. We finish by sharing some of teams outputs (always entertaining), announcing the winners and awarding prizes. A great day out—a unique was of exploring the beautiful countryside.
